

Havana Communications Construction Base Station

Overview

Which Havana sites are still under construction?

Sites near Havana, namely Wajay and Calabazar, have also witnessed expansion, with analysts noting the installation of antennae, radar dishes, and other equipment possibly used for satellite monitoring. The fourth site, El Salao, appears to still be under construction.

Does Cuba have a satellite program?

However, it indicates significant developments in satellite monitoring equipment at sites like Bejucal and Calabazar, particularly noteworthy given Cuba's lack of its own satellites or space program.

What's going on near Havana?

Two other sites near Havana — Wajay and Calabazar — have seen growth as well, with CSIS analysts citing evidence of an expanding and evolving mission, including the installation of antennae, radar dishes and other equipment that could help those using it to monitor satellites. The final site, El Salao, appears to be still under construction.
